

Chloe Trenouth

BPlan (Hons), MNZPI

Director

Chloe is a Director with Hill Young Cooper Ltd, a strategic resource management and environmental policy and planning consultancy. Chloe has over 18 years planning experience in both central and local government as well as the private sector; she holds qualifications in planning from the University of Auckland.

Chloe has experience in strategy development, preparation and processing district plan changes and designation, and preparation and processing resource consents. She approaches projects with a view of the big picture and is focused on achieving deliverables effectively and on time. Chloe has prepared and processed plan changes and designations. Specific skills include policy analysis and development; research; project management; assessments of effects; section 32 reports for plan changes; and research.

Most recently Chloe has been assisting the Auckland Council in the development of the Proposed Auckland Unitary Plan as the lead planner for the Urban Growth and Mana Whenua chapters at both the Regional Policy Statement and District Plan level. Chloe has attended Environment Court mediations and prepared expert planning evidence on appeals to the Proposed Auckland Unitary Plan.

Prior to rejoining Hill Young Cooper, Chloe worked at the Auckland Council as a Principal Strategic Planner on the development of the Auckland Plan working collaboratively across council departments. Chloe's role included providing technical input on housing, urban form, and accommodating growth.

Chloe has an excellent understanding of the Resource Management Act and the statutory requirements for plans and resource consents. She has previously worked as a policy analyst with the Ministry for the Environment, involved in review of the Resource Management Act.

Having worked within local government in Auckland and the UK, processing consents and developing policy at both the district and regional level, Chloe understands the local government environment. She is also very experienced at representing councils across a range of different technical areas as a consultant, and at working with councils on behalf of private clients.
